Therese Bengtsson is apart of the new movement here in NYC of model-run-for-models businesses. As founder of ethical modeling agency Role Models Management, based out of NYC and LA, Therese is on the cutting edge of the new movement in fashion. No longer is the campaign just about a face; it's about a lifestyle and a personality too. The face behind a brand must authentically represent the lifestyle a brand is trying to sell. This is where Role Models comes in. Representing talent such as Carolina Fontanetti, models are certainly beginning to understand this new wave as well.

Therese was happy to sit down and share the following on femininity, the future of the fashion industry, spreading positivity and more:
