

val emanuel + role models management

at the age of two, val was scouted at a mall in los angeles, and has been working in the entertainment industry ever since. her commercial credits include nike, old navy and target, and in 2015 after shooting straight outta compton, she put her career on hold to finish her degree in art history and take time for her family. val has promoted environmental awareness, and animal activism since her early teens. in 2016 she graced billboards across america in the let's recycle right campaign. when an email linked val with her co-founder therese, it was clear that role models needed to happen and, with their unique strength, the journey began.
